IKE SUBMITS BALANCED BUDGET

City's Redevelopment Is Outlined by Mayor; For P&LE Property Change

Mayor Hugo J. Parente, in a written address read in his absence by City Solicitor Frank P. Ezerski, Jr., yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Monessen Rotary Club, outlined present and future redevelopment plans for Monessen.

In one of the major points of his address, which Ezerski delivered verbatim, the Mayor suggested the relocation of the present Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad property between Second and Fourth streets on Donner avenue.

He said:

"As you know for many, many years, it has been the popular and well-founded belief of many, including your City administration and Chamber of Commerce, that this site could have been put to far better use from a community-wide viewpoint. Not only can the appearance of this site be vastly improved, but it can be stated that this is the only direction for our commercial district to expand."

P & L E Relocation

The property the Mayor referred to is the railroad's freight station at Fourth street and Donner avenue and the ground from the station to Second street. Most of the latter is now being used for City-controled parking under lease.

He said the most logical place for P. & L. E.'s relocation would be the site of the former Monessen Foundry at the eastern end of the City.

"I need not remind you," he stated, "that time after time we have sought ways and means to approach this problem but all efforts were in vain. The stumbling block has always been the prohibitive cost of relocating the freight station and yard."

The Mayor added that with the creation of the newly organized Redevelopment Authority it now "becomes feasible and most certainly a possibility" to relocate the P. & L. E. property at the eastern part of Monessen.

Continuing, he said, "Now, this is not intended to tell the railroad how to run its business, but I feel that they, too, have a responsibility to our community. The area offers some already available facilities and provides for an ideal location from which to service Monessen and surrounding areas.

'Missed the Boat'

"I would venture to say the utilization of this presently unused land for this purpose can even provide an incentive for some small industry to locate there. . . In fact, arrangements have been made for a visit to Monessen by a representative of a federal agency for the purpose of ascertaining

Torquato Fund Probe Called Just Routine

HARRISBURG (UP) — State officials investigating a special $1,170,000 fund in the Labor and Industry Department maintain the inquiry is purely routine and for state budget purposes only.

State Budget Secretary Andrew M. Bradley said the investigation of the funds, which are under the control of Labor and Industry Secretary John R. Torquato, is a "purely routine check into every dollar available for the budget" which is now being prepared for presentation to the state Legislature next month.

The fund accumulated from fines and penalties levied against employers who fail to make proper returns on their payments into the state's unemployment compensation fund. The money may be used for payroll purposes, labor surveys and similar activities.

Torquato said that under his jurisdiction, $187,000 from the fund has been used for "work in the migratory labor program, refugee program, tracing and recovery of lost and stolen checks and fraud prevention and detection."

He said he did not object to a statement by state Treasurer eldon B. Heyburn that the fund should be investigated.

Heyburn said late Tuesday that he has not yet been able to obtain identification of 23 state employes paid from the fund. He would continue his efforts to get the information today.

Banning Mine Closing to Idle More Miners

Some 100 miners were made idle this week with notice that Banning Coal Mine No. 1 of Republic Steel Co. was forced to close.

Company officials said the mine, located near Smithton, has been completely "worked out."

Although expected by Smithton residents, the closing, nevertheless, came as a shock because of its suddenness.

Approximately 200 miners were furloughed from this mine in 1954 in the first move that foretold the eventual closing. Some men were employed at Banning No. 3 and in various steel mills in the district.

Banning No. 3, opened by Republic several years ago, is the only coal mine now operating in the Smithton area.

McDonald Warns Steel Union to Seek Pay Boost

CHICAGO (UP) — David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers, has warned the nation's steel industry that a substantial wage demand will be high on the agenda in any future contract negotiations.

"We never intend to stop in our efforts to achieve ac onstantly rising standard of living for all of our people," said McDonald.

He summed up future goals of the USW Tuesday at the closing session of a two-day regional working conference attended by more than 1,000 local presidents from eight districts.

The group represents nearly a quarter of the 1,221,000-member union.

McDonald listed three suggestions as to how the men could be kept working in the face of automation. They included a four-day work week, a five - day 30-hour week, and a three or four-month vacation every five years in adtion to regular annual paid vacations.

He later estimated the vacation plan would put 25,000 more workers on the payrolls in the nation's steelmills.

Among fringe benefits he said the union would work for in the future were pensions based on total service, with widows of steelworkers to be eligible without reduction of benefits, and immediate pension eligibilty for permanently disabled workers regardless of length of service.

He also declared that future insurance programs must be totally supported by the industry. At present, workers pay half the cost in the basic steel insurance program.

He asked for $2.5 billion union trust fund with profit on both the social and financial side of the ledger.

Frozen Northeast Will Get No Relief, Forecaster Says

By UNITED PRESS

Heavy snow warnings posed a new threat to the frozen Northeast today in the midst of a record-shattering cold wave.

And weathermen foresaw no relief from the death dealing cold wave as a fresh mass of Arctic air swept across the north central states.

A United Press survey showed at least 32 weather-caused fatalities since the cold wave gripped most of the nation east of the Rockies Monday.

There were seven deaths in Indiana, six in New York, four in Illinois, three each in Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, two in Mchigan, two in New England, two in North Carolina and one each in Iowa, Mississippi, South Carolina and Washington, D.C.

The Northeast, which had the continent's coldest weather Tuesday with a record 55 degrees below zero at Boonville, N.Y., was due for heavy snows today.

More Snow Coming

Weathermen warned the snow will pile up to a depth of 6 to 12 inches in most of New England with the exception of northern Maine and Connecticut.

Snow flurries were predicted to extend as far west as the eastern Ohio Valley and the northern Great Lakes region.

At Oswego, N.Y., a gas main break during the area's worst cold wave in history Tuesday shut off service to some 15,000 homes. About 30,000 persons were left without heat in temperatures as low as 24 degrees below zero.

Fires blamed on overheated stoves in the widespread cold air belt continued to take a heavy toll of lives.

At Saline, Mich., a mother and her three children were believed dead in a residential blaze, and a father and two children were killed in a fire at Jeffersonville, Ind.

Fire Hits Dormitory

A fire broke out in a dormitory housing 140 women at the Dixon, Ill., state school, but luckily the women were in a dining hall and no injuries were reported. Fifteen patients fled to safety in 14-degree weather when a fire destroyed a nursing home at Clay City, Ind.

Uniontown Gets Loan to Attract New Industries

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Pennsylvania Industrial Authority has approved loans totaling $1,284,500 to six Pennsylvania communities in its program to aid communities in attracting new industries.

The authority in its meeting Tuesday approved loans in these amounts

Scranton, $275,000; Sunbury, $37,500; Beaver Meadows, $30,000 and Uniontown, $168,000 and $36,000 for two separate projects.

In addition the agency gave final approval to the Greater Wilkes-Barre Fund for a loan of $720,000 to erect a building to be occupied by the Eberhardt-Faber Pencil Co.

The authority also approved an increase of $18,000 over a previous commitment of $72,000 for the community of Lewistown.

Denies Reports Of Bridge Delay In Brownsville

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Highways Department today denied reports it will abandon plans to construct a bridge over the Monongahela River at Brownsville.

A department spokesman said there were "rumors" that construction of the span, authorized by the last Legislature as a toll bridge, might be put off indefinitely.

"It's still in the process of designing," he said today. "And it's very much alive—any rumors to the contrary are completely untrue."

The official said that department engineers conferred with officials of the U.S. Bureau of Roads here last week concerning the project. He said the conference resulted in some revisions in tentative plans for the structure—mainly in the approaches to Brownsville.

"It's a very intricate job and it may be some time until the plans are completed," he said.

Personal Property Tax Assistance Planned for Area

Representatives of the Westmoreland County Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes will be in the Monessen district to assist residents in making out personal property tax returns, it was announced today by Andrew Kritsky, chairman.

Following is the schedule:

North Belle Vernon Borough building, Jan. 28; Monessen City Building, Jan. 29; Scottdale Borough building, Jan. 31, and West Newton Borough building, Feb. 1. The representatives will sit from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. on those days.

Kritsky said that tax forms have been sent to all persons known to possess personal property, but he called attention to the fact that failure to receive a form does not excuse any holder of personal property from paying the four mills tax. Among the taxable items are stocks, bonds, mortgages, notes, judgments and other evidence of indebtedness.

The deadline for filing is Feb. 15.

County Rackets Figure Faces Bribery Charge

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A former New Kensington dental technician told a federal court jury today that Gabriel (Kelly) Mannarino sauntered over to him outside a federal court room and handed him $150.

Mannarino is on trial, charged with trying to obstruct justice by offering a bribe to Harry W. Truitt Jr., who he thought was to be a witness in a government vote fraud case.

Truitt, now living in Philadelphia, testified that Mannarino, 50, gave him the money on Jan. 10, 1955, following the noon recess on the first day of the trial of seven New Kensington defendants charged with vote frauds.

The government contends Mannarino had reason to believe Truitt was going to testify at the trial in which Frank Phillips, a New Kensington gambler and rackets boss, was one of the defendants.

Truitt said Mannarino followed him to a water cooler and asked him to step over by the stairwell. There, Truitt told the jury "he gave me $100 and said 'That's peanuts'."

Then, Truitt said, "he gave me another $50 and said 'just keep your mouth shut.'"

Mrs. Truitt, who had gone to the trial two years ago merely as a spectator with her husband, testified as a government witness Monday afternoon at the first session of the trial. She said she and Truitt left the building after the conversation with Mannarino and when they got outside "Harry pulled out a $100 bill and a $50 bill."

The Truitts turned the money over to the FBI the same day.

Truitt never was called as a witness at the vote fraud trial at which all the defendants either pleaded guilty or were convicted.

Asst. U.S. Atty. John A. DeMay said the charge against Mannarino is "endeavoring to obstruct or influence justice—not that he did. Truitt was not a witness but the defendant had reason to believe he was."

Turnpike Board In New Building

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission has completed removal of its headquarters to its new administration building located at the Harrisburg East Interchange of the toll road.

Commission officials said although the building is incomplete, commission headquarters had to be moved because the lease expired on its premises on Fourth Street in Harrisburg. Most of the work on the incomplete building remains to be finished on the third floor, where the commission's executive offices will be located.

Tax Cut Ruled Out; Spending At Record High

Other stores on Pages 8, 11

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower today proposed a $71.8 billion spending budget — the biggest ever in peacetime America.

He said three-fifths of this huge amount is necessary to provide U. S. and allied strength "to deter and, if need be, to defeat aggression" in this still uncertain world.

He ruled out any general tax cut this year despite a small projected surplus. He asked for higher postal rates.

The President's secretary of Treasury, George M. Humphrey, emphatically called for reduced spending and tax cuts in future budgets.

If this isn't done, "we'll have a depression that will curl your hair," said Humphrey without commiting himself to any definite time element. He held out cautious hope that tax cuts could be started next year.

Humphrey made it plain to reporters that the record spending proposed in the new budget for fiscal 1958 was distasteful to him, although he went along with it.

The official budget itself was presented to Congress with a message from the President, which was ready by clerks.

Includes Spending Records

The Eisenhower budget was studded with records for spending exceeding those of peacetime Roosevelt and Truman years — for U.S. armed forces ($38 billion), for farm programs, for atomics and others.

His new budget for fiscal 1958 was in the black for the third straight year. The surplus of revenues over spending was estimated at $1.8 billion for the new year starting next July 1.

But to help check inflation, Mr. Eisenhower said, the surplus must be used further to reduce the federal debt which now stands at $275.7 billion.

"The prospective budget surplus in the fiscal year 1958 will reinforce the restraining effect of present credit and monetary policies," he said in a new warning of inflation dangers.

Mr. Eisenhower asked an increase of $654 million in postal rates. His budget message did not give any details, but they were sure to include one or two cents more for a first class letter.

Congress turned down such a request last year. His chances were considered better for getting it this year.

Big Security Proposal

Of the total spending, about six-tenths—$45.3 billion—would be for national security, including military and economic aid to U.S. allies. U.S. armed forces would get $38 billion. These programs, he said, will "provide a wise and reasonable degree of protection for the nation."

In addition to the big defense budget, Mr. Eisenhower called for the highest spending ever on atomic energy and farm programs. Atomic energy funds were hiked by $400 million to $2.3 billion for military and peaceful purposes. Agriculture spending was increased by $300 million to $5 billion.

Sizeable increases also were asked for veterans benefits, improved air safety and development of natural resources.

Mr. Eisenhower telescoped his five-year $1.2 billion school construction program into a four-year plan. It died in Congress last year because of the segregation issue. He estimated spending next year on school construction at $185 million if Congress now agrees to start the program.

Above Present Budget

All these things, and more, pushed the total spending estimate up $2.8 billion over the current fiscal year, fiscal 1957.

About seven-tenths of the increase went to the military. It resulted largely from the high cost of "new and more powerful weapons," such as guided missiles with atomic warheads. The missiles budget rose from $1.5 to $2 billion.

Mr. Eisenhower said U.S. military forces also must be equipped

Hungry Burglar In Lunch Room Near the Bridge

An apparently hungry burglar broke into Essey's Lunch Room near the Charleroi-Monessen Bridge early this morning and made off with six pounds of ground meat.

He also took $26 in cash during his escapade, Monessen police reported.

Entrance to the lunch room, which has been burglarized numerous times the past several years, was gained by breaking a rear door.

The burglar broke open pinball and cigarette machines but they were emptied of money before the lunch room closed at 1 a. m.

However, the thug managed to open the freezer where the proprietor, William Essey, of 604 McKee avenue, had $26 in personal money hidden. Before leaving the freezer, the burglar picked up the ground meat.

Police are tracing footprints found in the snow outside the rear door.

The burglary took place about 4:15 a. m., police believe.

It takes a complicated and costly network of telephone facilities to make it simple and inexpensive for you to

Call Across the Land

You probably don't think twice about it, but with a few measured flicks of your forefinger on a telephone dial you can put a multi-billion-dollar maze of equipment into operation. Seconds after you do, your voice goes hurtling through wires, through hundreds or thousands of electrical devices, until it reaches another telephone. That telephone may be across the street or across the nation. It could be any one of 60 million telephones linked together in the United States today.

This modern miracle requires a tremendously complex network of telephone circuits. Just picture a map of the United States, with every highway, country road, city street, and private driveway marked on it—and you'll have some idea of how complex it is.

Thousands of telephone central offices—housing intricate switching equipment—are needed all over the country to relay your call quickly and accurately. Highly skilled engineers and technicians are called upon to keep this equipment operating smoothly around the clock, under normal or abnormal conditions.

And there are abnormal conditions. Perhaps the place you're calling is shrouded in a dense fog or is buried in a record snowfall. A flood or hurricane or 4-alarm fire may be raging there. Under such circumstances, Long Distance lines may soon become overcrowded.

Here's where the flexibility of the system comes into play. Additional circuits are needed. They're acquired by shifting and rearranging present circuits both at the toll centers and in the local central offices. Calls normally relayed through the area to other points can be diverted and rerouted by way of other cities. The great toll switching machines throughout the country will also automatically reroute calls. And—if the problem arises on a weekend or a holiday—still other circuits can be temporarily leased back from large industries which have national networks of private lines between their offices and plants.

Major family holidays—like Christmas, Mother's Day or Thanksgiving—are more "predictable" than fog, snow or disasters, but still require carefully planned adjustments in circuit facilities. Since so many holiday calls go to small towns and villages throughout the country, the number of circuits normally serving them must be increased. Traffic records for previous holidays help Telephone Company officials determine which areas will be affected, so that delayed holiday calls can be kept to an absolute minimum.

You may wonder why more circuits can't be supplied everywhere—permanently—to handle these abnormal calling loads. They could be. But it would be prohibitively expensive—and impractical, since they would be needed so seldom. With our present flexible circuit system, we can put your call through without delay 99 times out of 100—and at the most reasonable rates in the world.

Asks Increase in Interest

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today to increase the interest rate on VA home loans from 4½ to 5 per cent. He hoped this would attract new money into the lagging housing industry.

VA loans are made by private sources, with repayment guaranteed by the government.

The President also requested more money for the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae). This is the government agency that buys government-insured mortgages in areas where money is scarce and homebuyers are unable to obtain loans.

Mr. Eisenhower said in his budget message that he made the requests because "increased demands for credit for other purposes last year made these (government) insured and guaranteed mortgages unattractive to many private lenders.

"As a result," he said, "many potential buyers were unable to borrow for the purchase of homes, and as the demand fell off, builders curtailed the number of new homes begun."

A group of 40 representative home builders from all sections of the country said last week they will start fewer than 900,000 new houses this year. The group said the chief cause is the tight money market. It would be the first time since 1948 that housing starts have dropped below one million.

Wants Peaceful Uses Of Nuclear Power

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today ordered redoubled efforts to perfect atomic and hydrogen power for peaceful uses.

Proposing a record $2.3 billion spending budget for the atomic energy commission, the President also:

—Scheduled new high production of all kinds of nuclear weapons with emphasis on tactical (battlefield) A-bombs and "cleaner" H-bombs—weapons with reduced radioactive fallout.

—Warned private industry that if it does not build promising new kinds of atomic power plants, the federal government will.

—Asked Congress for "prompt action" to authorize full U. S. participation in the new international atomic energy agency devoted to peaceful use of the atom.

The $2.3 billion atomic expenditure proposed for the 1958 fiscal year starting July 1 compares with $1.7 billion spent in 1956 and estimated spending of $1.9 billion in the current fiscal year.

Most of the $400 million increase will be spent for weapons, with new production plants going into operation, and for atomic explosives and fuels.

But the President said "efforts to develop the peaceful uses of atomic energy will be greatly increased, particularly in the development of reactors to produce atomic power at competitive prices."

He also told Congress "more resources will be applied to the longer term effort" to tame H-bomb reactors for power.

Mr. Eisenhower scheduled new millions for atomic power plants to drive merchant ships, naval vessels, and aircraft. But the biggest spending jump in the power field will be for civilian reactors to generate electricity.

He estimated that $95 million will go for developing peacetime atomic power in fiscal 1958, a jump of $35.4 million from the 1957 estimate and $52.7 million over 1956.

The President said the Atomic Energy Commission will "explore new power reactor concepts" and build and operate experimental plants . . .

He said private industry and not the government should assume responsibility for building large-scale commercial power reactors.

"However," he continued, "if acceptable proposals for non-federal construction of promising reactor types do not materialize within a reasonable time, a request will be made to the Congress for funds for direct construction by the federal government."

Here's Budget Figures for '58 At a Glance

Budget: At a glance

Washington: (UP) — President Eisenhower's fiscal 1958 budget at a glance:

Tax cut: None for the average citizen; possibly some modest relief for small business. Higher postal rates asked.

Spending: Highest in peacetime history, $71.8 billion. That's up $2.9 billion from this year; higher defense costs account for most of rise.

Revenues: Mr. Eisenhower assumes business will stay good, estimates the government will take in $73.6 billion next fiscal year compared to $70.6 this year.

Surplus: Will amount to about $1.8 billion if all goes as budgeted, but "uncertainties abound." The figure was $1.7 billion this year.

Big Items: Defense, $38 billion; foreign aid, $4.4 billion; atomic energy, $2.3 billion; interest on debt, $7.4 billion; agriculture, $5 billion; veterans benefits, $5 billion.

Ike Asks Help For Federal Judges Over 70

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower, who will be 70 before he finishes his second term, asked Congress today for authority to appoint a helper for any federal judge who declines to retire when he reaches 70.

He also recommended in his budget message that senior judges of circuit and district courts be "relieved" of administrative duties at 70 if they "choose not to retire."

Federal judges have lifetime appointments and may remain on the bench past 70 if they wish. Mr. Eisenhower said that in such cases, the President should be authorized to "appoint an additional judge" to the same bench.

GOP Loses New Chance To Win Senate Control

Texas Senator Says He Will Vote Democrat

WASHINGTON (UP)—A new chance for the GOP to take control of the almost evenly divided Senate is dead.

The chance turned on the vote of newly-appointed Sen. William Blakley of Texas—an Eisenhower Democrat named to succeed temporarily Democrat Price Daniel.

For some 12 hours Tuesday after Blakley's appointment by retiring Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas, an ardent Eisenhower supporter, GOP hopes for Senate control brightened.

If Blakley voted with the GOP, the Senate would be split 48-48. Vice President Richard M. Nixon's tie-breaking vote would swing control to the Republicans.

Blakley declined to state definitely in Texas if he would bolt to the GOP. Then a few minutes after he arrived in Washington, Tuesday night he said "sure" he would vote with the Democrats. That ended that.

Other congressional news:

Doctrine: The economic part of the Eisenhower Doctrine appeared headed for trouble in the Senate. A movement to cut the aid provision from the request to use troops if necessary in the Middle East gathered strength. The President seeks a special two-year $100 million aid program.

Financial: The Senate Banking Committee called in for questioning members of the Federal Reserve Board staff. The Federal Reserve Board has been criticized by Democrats for its "tight money" policy.

Wage: A dozen AFL-CIO officials planned to call on Senate and House leaders to urge broadening of the $1 federal minimum wage. The officials scheduled meetings earlier in the day with Vice President Richard M. Nixon and the President.

Leader's Press Secretary Quits Effective Monday

HARRISBURG (UP)—Thomas K. Hodges, Pittsburgh, today announced his resignation as Gov. George M. Leader's press secretary, effective Jan. 21.

Hodges said in a letter to the governor that he wished to be relieved of his "duties and position as public relations secretary." He said his reasons for leaving the $12,500-a-year post were "personal."

He indicated that he will remain with the state for an undetermined period in another public relations post...probably in the Public Instruction Department.

Hodges became press secretary when Leader took office in January, 1955. Previously he had been with the Office of Public Affairs of the United States High Commissioner in Bonn, Germany. He served as a captain in the Army and upon his discharge in May, 1946, became director of the Language Division at the Nuernburg war crimes trials, where he supervised translation of documents.

Newsman Doubts Red Agents with Refugees

WHEELING, Va. (UP)—A United Press foreign correspondent who remained in Budapest throughout the Hungarian revolution has discounted the possibility Communist agents may have entered the United States with Hungarian refugees.

The UP newsman, Russell Jones, said the "present Hungarian government is too disorganized to have sent special agents into this country."

Jones told a combined meeting of the Wheeling Rotary and Lions clubs at the McClure Hotel Tuesday that while some Communists may have been admitted with refugees. "I doubt if they were agents."

The Wheeling Intelligencer and News-Register sponsored the appearance of Jones, who returned to the United States last month after the puppet government in Budapest expelled him.

Jones, only American newsman to remain in Budapest throughout the revolt last fall, also addressed a combined meeting of Wheeling women's club groups.

The United Press writer pointed out that only 10 Hungarians have been returned by the U. S. government out of the 21,500 refugees accepted for admission to this country.

Jones said he felt the United Nations should have taken positive action to halt the Russian massacre of the Hungarians.

"The main thing for America now is to make a decision about the future," he said. "We must decide when to translate words into action."

"For some time we have been talking about our 'policy of liberation', Radio Free Europe and the Voice of America broadcast to these people every statement by our leaders about freedom for the Red-dominated countries of Europe. Thus the implication has been that we would help them."

Arturo Toscanini, Noted Conductor, Suffers Stroke

NEW YORK (UP)— Maestro Arturo Toscanini, world renowned symphony and opera conductor, died early today at the age of 89. He suffered a stroke while asleep.

The beloved Italian-born musical genius died at his Riverdale home in the Bronx. His health had declined steadily since his retirement from the podium in 1954 and he was reported nearly blind.

Toscanini suffered a stroke on New Year's Day, but had recovered enough to get about his house. A spokesman said he was found dead in bed at 8:40 a.m.

Friends said he had been so ill that he was not told of the death of his protege, young Italian conductor Guido Cantelli, in an air crash in Europe shortly before Thanksgiving.

Toscanini conducted his last opera, "Falstaff," at La Scala of Milan in 1954, ending a 68-year career that began when he conducted "Aida" at the age of 19 in Rio de Janeiro. He last wielded his baton in New York at a broadcast concert of the NBC symphony orchestra April 4, 1954.

Toscanini returned to the United States for the last time in March, 1955, and had not left the country since. He spent much of his time since giving critical advice on recordings and re-recordings of his symphonic and operatic albums. He devoted several hours a day to work almost to the day of his death.

Toscanini was the last survivor of the "golden age" conductors, a man who had known as an equal most of the towering musical figures of the 19th and 20th centuries. His memory was phenomenal and he kept the scores of more than 100 operas and many scores of symphonies in his head.

Negroes Taking Usual Places On Miami Buses

MIAMI (UP)— Negro leaders advised members of their race to sit where they please on city buses today but thousands of Negro riders on early morning runs took their usual places in the rear.

City attorneys have conceded in federal court that the local bus segregation law is unconstitutional and a federal judge has ruled it illegal. But the city has asked dismissal of the ruling on a technical ground.

Police and bus company officials reported that Negroes, apparently ignoring the advice of some of their leaders, made no attempt to defy segregation customs during the early morning rush period.

Bus company officials instructed drivers to ask Negroes to move to the rear of buses as required under the existing law.

Husband Finds He Misses His Wife Great Deal

LEVITTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Charles A. Lloyd's attempt at cooking while his wife was in a hospital caused $1,500 damages.

Lloyd, a 29-year-old salesman, began to cook his own supper Tuesday night. He had the French fried potatoes browning nicely when he remembered he left the engine of his automobile running outside.

He raced out of the house and turned off the ignition but when he came back he found the front door had blown shut and locked.

Then Lloyd saw smoke coming from the rear. The burning French fries had set fire to the kitchen. Neighbors came running to help. They broke a window and pushed a garden hoze through it but the water in the hose had frozen.

A bucket brigade was started while one of the neighbors called firemen who finally put out the fire.

Syria Receives Soviet Jets

WASHINGTON (UP)—Syria has recently received a small number of Soviet Mig-17 jet planes, informed sources disclosed today.

They said Russia is expected to supply still more of the speedy, swept-wing aircraft to Syria. No one can estimate how many more, however.

A State Department spokesman acknowledged the department has received "unconfirmed reports" of the new Soviet plane deliveries. He refused to give any details of the reports reaching the department but said they indicate that "an additional amount of aircraft of Soviet origin" have arrived in the Mideast country.

Latrobe Men Die In Plane

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UP)—Two men from Latrobe, Pa., were killed Tuesday when their twin-engine Beechcraft crashed into a snow-covered hillside near here.

A third man from Latrobe was burned critically.

Killed in the crash were Clyde Hauger, 47, the pilot, and John Stasio, 34.

Harry Ridella, 19, was listed as critical today at Thomas Memorial Hospital with first, second and third degree burns of the entire body.

Officials at Kanawha Airport here said Hauger was flying the craft on instruments and had asked radar control to guide him from between two thick layers of heavy cloud formations.

Ice developed on the Beechcraft's wings and the plane had difficulty maintaining altitude.

State police said the burned wreckage seemed to indicate Hauger, a veteran of 30 years flying, attempted to bellyland his craft on the hillside. The gas tanks apparently exploded, trapping the victims within the flaming cabin.

Only a skeleton and molten metal remained of the front end of the craft.

Hauger, chief pilot for the Latrobe Construction Co., had been enroute to Latrobe from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., where he had picked up Stasio and Ridilla. The two passengers had driven to the Florida city the week before.

Stasio operated the Youngstown Tire Service Co. at Youngstown, Pa., near Latrobe. Ridilla was an employe of the Dill Construction Co., Latrobe.

The bodies of Hauger and Stasio were taken to the Curry Funeral Home at nearby Alum Creek where they were prepared for transfer to Latrobe.

Hauger had been one of Western Pennsylvania's pioneer airman. He started flying in 1926 and was co-operator of the Carbon Airport near Greensburg, Pa., until the field went out of business in 1950. He was a pilot for All-America Airways for 15 years.

destroyed that city's First Methodist Church and two other buildings in the downtown district.

At Memphis, industrial gas service was sharply reduced to conserve fuel for public use as temperatures hovered in the 20s most of Tuesday.

Residents of Chicago's north side battled an invasion of field mice seeking a warm haven from the cold.

The only haven for humans from the cold wave blanketing the entire area from the Rockies to the Atlantic was Florida where overnight readings got no lower than the 60s and Key West registered a warm 70 degrees.

Other early morning temperatures included Boston 5, Washington 19, St. Louis 6, Chicago 3 below, Milwaukee 5 below, Minneapolis 5 below, Bismarck, N.D., 14 below, Denver 3, Dallas, Tex., 27, Bozeman, Mont., 28 below. Seattle 31 and Los Angeles 53.

Pushnak to Head Drive with USW

The March of Dimes campaign of Pittsburgh Steel Local 1229, United Steelworkers of America (AFL-CIO), will be headed this year by Paul Pushnak, Anthony Ortolona, president, announced today.

At a recent regular meeting, the local agreed to turn over all receipts from its bowling alleys on Jan. 19 and 20 to the polio drive.

Budget

The military funds were divided: $17.5 billion for the Air Force, $10.3 billion for the Navy and $9.1 billion for the Army—all to maintain them as a "bulwark for world peace and security."

The President made clear that the development of atomic and hydrogen weapons will be pushed until an ironclad disarmament agreement is reached with Russia.

"Our nuclear weapons and our ability to employ them," he said, "constitute the most effective deterrent to an atack on the free nations.

"We shall continue to expand our nuclear arsenal until an agreement has been reached for reduction and regulation of armaments under safeguarded inspection guarantees."

The whole 1958 budget stacked up against 1957's like this:

(in billions)	1958	1957
Receipts	$73.6	$70.6
Expenditures	71.8	68.9
Surplus	1.8	1.7

While proposing record-spending, Mr. Eisenhower emphasized the importance of government, business and labor doing their utmost to curb inflation.

Government can do its part by practicing all possible economies and deferring a tax cut, he said. For this reason, he said, he recommended against some "desirable construction projects."

While taxes "must be retained at the present rates," he said, Congress should consider some tax relief for small business "with a minimum loss" of federal revenue.

Decreases in tobacco, liquor, auto and corporation taxes scheduled for April 1, he said, must be postponed for another year.

Stating that his revenue estimates were based on continued prosperity, Mr. Eisenhower said "the prospect for continued economic growth is bright."

Revenue Increase Shown

The current prosperity was reflected in an increase of $828 million in 1957 revenue over the August estimate. It resulted mainly from increased receipts from the personal income tax.

Mr. Eisenhower's budget message included a number of legislative recommendations.

It proposed that the interest rate on veterans' home loans be increased from four and one-half to five per cent in an effort to induce investors to make more money available for such loans.

It asked Congress to approve a natural gas bill similar to the one Mr. Eisenhower vetoed last year because of what he called "arrogant" lobbying for it. The bill would ease federal regulation of gas producers.

The President also recommended statehood for Alaska and Hawaii, additional federal judges, a new corn acreage program, authority to barter of far surpluses to iron curtain countries, easier credit for small business, and lowering of the voting age.

More Unemployment Aid

In the labor field, he urged extension of unemployment insurance and minimum wages to more workers.

"Legislation should be enacted to require the registration of employe pension and welfare funds to protect the interests of beneficiaries," he said.

Mr. Eisenhower again asked for congressional approval of U. S. membership in the proposed International Organization for Trade Cooperation. Congress refused such a request last year.

In making up the 1958 budget, Mr. Eisenhower said he was guided by eight national objectives. The four major ones were:

"1. Peace, justice and freedom for our own and other peoples;

"2. Powerful armed forces to deter and, if need be, to defeat aggression;

"3. A healthy and growing economy with prosperity widely shared;

"4. Enhancement of individual opportunity and the well-being of all our people."

The spending estimates also were based on fiscal integrity, a "wise" conservation program, a "well-balanced choice" of domestic and foreign aid program, and increasing world trade.

Omit Highway Funds

For the first time, highway funds were to be handled outside the regular budget. If they had been included, spending would have been $1.7 billion higher and receipts $2.1 billion more.

In approving a $27 billion superhighway program last year, Congress set up a special trust fund similar to that for Social Security.

All trust funds are included in the so-called "cash budget." This accounts for all federal receipts from and payments to the public—trust fund or regular budget. The 1958 estimates here showed: receipts $85.9 billion; payments $82.9 billion and surplus $3 billion.

This surplus, considered the best yardstick of the anti-inflationary effect of government fiscal activities, compared with $3.5 billion in 1957 and $4.5 billion in 1956.

Mr. Eisenhower indicated the spending budget in fiscal 1959 may go even higher. He asked for a $2.8 billion increase in obligational authority. If Congress approves, the way will be cleared for increased spending next year.

The administration's "tight money" policy boomeranged as to the public debt. Although the debt is being reduced, interest payments will increase by $100 million to about $7.4 billion. The average rate of interest the Treasury has had to pay has risen from about 2.5 to 2.7 per cent in the past year.

Churchill in Nice

LONDON (UP)— Sir Winston Churchill, wearing a fur-collared coat to protect him against a bitter wind, flew to Nice today for his winter vacation on the Riviera.

Water Projects In '58 Budget

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today asked Congress for $13.4 million for water control and development projects in Pennsylvania. The projects were included in appropriation requests totaling $846 million for the entire country.

The Pennsylvania projects included: improvement of Monongahela River Dam 8 near Point Marion $1 million; Bear Creek reservoir $3.7 million; engineering studies and Indian reservation relocation at the Warren dam site on the Allegheny River $1 million; flood control at Allentown $700,000; $2 million each for the Dyberry, Prompton and Stillwater Reservoirs, and channel improvement at Bradford $1 million.

Seneca Chief to Pass Inauguration

TOWANDA, N.Y. (UP)—President Cornelius Seneca of the Seneca Nation of Indians will not attend the inauguration of President Eisenhower next Monday. Instead he will be fighting "U.S. infringement on Indian land."

Seneca had planned to accept his invitation but decided "my duty lies with my tribesmen."

The Seneca Nation of Indians is engaged in a court battle with the Army Corps of Engineers to prevent construction of the Kinzua Dam on the Allegheny River, which would dispossess one third of the Senecas.

Seneca and his tribesmen charge the construction would "violate" our treaty rights that have been standing for the past 153 years."

Ike Earmarks Drought Aid

WICHITA, Kan. (UP)— President Eisenhower announced plans to earmark $76 million for immediate aid to drought-crippled farmers and ranchers Tuesday night in completing a 4,500-mile tour that took him into six water-short states.

In addition to immediate assistance, the President listed a series of long-range plans designed to help overcome the worst drought disaster in this country in modern history.

The President's tour, which began Sunday night, visited six states in the southern Great Plains where he talked to numerous farmers and ranchers on their individual problems brought on by the seven-year drought.

Need Local Help

Mr. Eisenhower emphasized he thinks state and local governments should help farmers and ranchers more with their problems.

"I am convinced that state and local governments should assume greater responsibility in helping solve the recurring problems of agriculture, including distress.

"I think this would aid materially in a more effective administration of these programs and in better adapting them to local conditions and to natural requirements," he said.

He told a special drought conference of representatives from 15 western, midwestern and southwestern states that he will ask Congress to:

1. Let him spend $25 million from the disaster loan revolving fund for emergency feed assistance to ranchers and farmers.

2. Extend, until June 30, 1958, $25 million of the unobligated funds appropriated for agricultural conservation, so Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson can pay farmers to carry out wind erosion prevention and other emergency conservation measures.

3. Appropriate an additional $26 million primarily for refinancing farm indebtedness by direct loans.

The special drought conference was scheduled to wind up its meetings at noon today, but a spokesman for the Agriculture Department said final recommendations would not be announced until a later date.

The President also announced that the Western Railway Association has agreed to continue until March 31 a 50 per cent reduction in freight rates on hay in drought areas.

In his long-range view on the drought, the President called for extensive research, particularly into underground water. This is a project that will take a long time and should be thorough, he said.

Alcorn Opposition Is Building Up

Has Ike OK for GOP Job

WASHINGTON (UP) — Some opposition built up today to election of H. Meade Alcorn of Connecticut to the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee. There was no indication yet, however, that the opposition would be effective.

Alcorn, the front-running candidate for the job, was understood to have White House approval.

The GOP committee will meet next Tuesday to elect a successor to Leonard W. Hall, the retiring chairman. The choice actually will be that of President Eisenhower.

A veteran national committeeman, who asked not to be identified, conceded that there is opposition to Alcorn, but said he expected the committee to go along with the election of its Connecticut member to the chairmanship.

Bliss Supported

Another highly placed Republican said a backfire has built up against Alcorn in support of Ray C. Bliss, Ohio State Republican chairman.

If Alcorn should be sidetracked, the presumed beneficiary would be Bliss or New York GOP Chairman L. Judson Morehouse unless the party turned to a dark horse compromise.

Alcorn's opposition was reported to come partly from some Republicans in his home state and partly from critics who question his qualifications. These critics have questioned whether he has the experience to head the party organization in its uphill fight to recapture control of Congress in the 1958 elections.

Americans Who Sold To Red Spy Innocent

WASHINGTON (UP)— Informed sources said today there is little likelihood that Americans who sold strategic electronics equipment to Soviet spy Yuri P. Krylov will be prosecuted.

They said the Americans involved either were unwitting accomplices or persons who cooperated with the United States in uncovering the Russian's espionage activities.

Krylov, an assistant military attache at the Soviet Embassy, was ordered expelled from this country late Monday. The State Department announced the expulsion order Tuesday. It said Krylov had been asked to leave "immediately."

The department levelled two charges against the Soviet army officer. It said he:

—"Improperly purchased "quantities of electronics equipment" through "American intermediaries." The department did not describe the equipment Krylov bought, but officials said it was not licensed for export.

—Attempted to buy military secrets.

The State Department declined to identify the "American intermediaries" who sold the electronics equipment to the Russian. The Senate internal security subcommittee promptly said it would look into the case with a view to determining who they were.

Informed sources who knew about the intermediaries likewise refused to identify them or even to say how many were involved. But they said the Americans were either unaware of their errors or were cooperating with the government.

For this reason, they said it is highly unlikely that anyone will be prosecuted. A final decision rests with the Justice Department, which declined comment on the case.

The equipment bought by Krylov was reported to include various kinds of electronic tubes, condensers, and other similar items.

Mayor

whether or not this tract of land will qualify for federal grants under the Urban Redevelopment Program.

"And whether it qualifies or not, I can reveal that the City administration is willing and prepared to acquire this site while there is still time. The administration feels that we have 'missed the boat' once and positively do not intend to 'miss it' again."

He said the acquisition of this land by the City would be advantageous to both the Planning Commission and Redevelopment Authority because "it may well be that a portion of this land may provide for a more suitable, and even less expensive site of a sewage disposal plant that is sure to come. The possession of this ground would place the municipality in a bartering position if that became necessary."

The Mayor urged the Planning Commission and Redevelopment Authority to place the relocation and development programs high on their list of future projects.

Cites Progress

"I say this also for the reason that this would be in complete harmony with the possibility of a project under consideration at the western end of town. As a matter of fact, the Planning Commission early last summer submitted to the state a preliminary statement of interest that tentatively selected one site and assembled data regarding existing conditions in the area.

"To be sure, such a program has far-reaching possibilities for Monessen, as it would involve reuse of land that is now blighted or unused at our two gateways to the City."

In the "state of the City" report, the Mayor cited the progress the City has made since he first took office in 1946. Parente is a candidate for reelection this year.

He gave special mention to the Park Plan, the areas annexed from Rostraver Township, Montraver Plan and the federal housing project near City Park. He told of improved streets, new recreational areas, and new and improved sewers.

Special Praise

He also pointed out the improvements made by "individuals themselves. . .businessmen who have remodeled their establishments and residents who have and are building new and better homes."

Special praise was given to the Parking Authority for the "many advances it has made in improving parking conditions. He also cited the Planning Commission for its "progressive thinking."

He closed his message saying, "I should like to add that the City's financial condition is sound. Yes, our present state of affairs is a healthy one, and we (the administration) are ready, willing and able to continue to lend our fullest cooperation and support toward all endeavors to be made henceforth in replanning, redeveloping and rejuvenating Monessen."

$1,000,000 IN GEMS — The begum Aga Khan, wearing about $1,000,000 worth of diamonds, led a glittering display of glamour and gems at the Imperial Ball in New York. The affair, for the benefit of hospitalized veterans, brought out 1,000 diamond-decked guests and 25 detectives. The wife of the Aga Khan flew in from Paris to be guest of honor at the lavish ball. Plainly visible here is her 52-carat diamond ring, a necklace called "The River of Diamonds," valued at $500,000, and other gems.

Red Skelton Goes On Despite Heavy Heart

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Red Skelton mugged his funniest on his television show Tuesday night, but the audience never saw the real drama that took place backstage.

After Red walked off the set, the producer, Cecil Barker, went into the comedian's dressing room and hugged him emotionally.

The comic, obviously tired and under a strain, returned to his live show for the first time since learning his 9-year-old son, Richard, is expected to die sometime this year from leukemia.

Only once did Red let the TV audience know of his heartbreak. At the end of the half hour program he thanked the 25,000 persons "in behalf of my wife, little Richard and myself" who have written or wired Red.

Red's wife, Georgia, was backstage as usual, laughing and gay. Another hero of the evening was Skelton's guest star, Mickey Rooney. He clowned constantly for two days between rehearsals to keep Red roaring.

"Red has hold of himself now," said Rooney. "He's resolved to pack as much love into these next few months as he can for the boy."

Rooney watched Skelton going through a routine on the stage while the audience howled. Mickey said, "The show unfortunately must go on. What else are you gonna do? Red is a champion."

New Spokesman for Communist Hungary

VIENNA (UP) — Western observers speculated today on the sudden emergence of Minister of State Gyoergy Marosan as chief spokesman for the Communist Hungarian regime.

There have been recurrent reports puppet Premier Janos Kadar has fallen from grace with the Kremlin because of failure to win even a semblance of popular support.

Observers noted it was Marosan, and not Kadar, who made the announcement of Communist China's $50 million aid offer to stricken Hungary, half in goods and half in the form of a loan.

The announcement came on the eve of the arrival in Budapest from Poland of Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai on his tour of the East European satellites.

Marosan accompanied Kadar to Moscow for talks with the Kremlin leaders and Chou recently. Since his return, he has appeared to become more prominent in the Communist regime.

Kadar, on the other hand, continues to remain silent publicly. Most government decrees have been issued by the so-called presidential council.

It was Marosan who brandished the "big stick" against rebellious Hungarian workers Tuesday. He told a group of Communist activists in a Budapest factory the Communist regime intends to restore law and order "by force of arms and work."

Newly-arrived travelers in Vienna reported that sporadic shooting still was heard during the night from the Gellert Hills. The Gellert Hills in northern Budapest was a holdout for freedom-fighters long after the general fighting ended in the capital itself.

Elderly Women Beaten, Kicked By Young Man

ERIE, Pa. (UP)—Two elderly women were beaten and kicked today by a 20-year-old man, a neighbor, who broke into their West 10th Street home at 1:30 a.m.

John Kotovick Jr., the assailant, surrendered to police before the attacks were discovered but appeared in a daze and was unable to give a coherent reason why he did it.

Kostovick told authorities "I've committed a crime", then led officers to the home of Mrs. Berta Metz, 74, and Miss Helen Allgeier, 72, who were unconscious on the floor of a bedroom.

Miss Allgeier, the most seriously injured, was reported in critical condition at St. Vincent's Hospital. Mrs. Metz was in fair condition. Both women suffered head injuries, face cuts, and bruises, and lost considerable blood.

Authorities said Kostovick will be held on an open charge pending outcome of Miss Algeier's injuries.

Mrs. Metz said she woke up at about 1:30 a.m. and saw a young man standing by her bed. She screamed and he began choking her, she said. Then her friend rushed in from another room and also was attacked.

After slugging and kicking the women, Kostovick told police, he fled through a broken window through which he had entered earlier.

Horse Pulling Contest Features Farm Show

HARRISBURG (UP)—The popular horse pulling contests were expected to draw good crowds to the Pennsylvania Farm Show tonight despite the snowfall and cold wave throughout the Commonwealth.

The annual competition to determine the state championship farm work horse team will be held in the large arena beginning at 7:30 p. m.

Another feature today was the awarding of degrees of "Keystone Farmers" to 220 rural youths in the state for outstanding achievement in farming practices, leadership and scholarship. In addition, Gov. George M. Leader, 36 other farmers, conservationists, businessmen and schoolmen, and fathers of state officers of the Future Farmers of America received "Honorary Keystone Farmer" degrees for outstanding aid to farming and agricultural education.

The top honor of "State Star Dairy Farmer of Pennsylvania" went to John A. Brown, 20, Susquehanna RD.

Show officials estimated attendance at Tuesday's show at 95,000, with a capacity crowd on hand in the evening for the annual rural talent festival "We Have It —In Pennsylvania." The director of the show, Prof. William R. Gordon, extension rural sociologist at Pennsylvania State University, was honored with an illuminated scroll signed by all members of the Farm Show Commission, including the governor.

Dr. Eric A. Walker, president of Penn State, told the annual banquet of the Pennsylvania State Poultry Federation held in conjunction with the Farm Show that the farmers of the state have a strong and active partnership with the university.

Walker described resident instruction, research and extension in the various branches of agriculture as among the university's major activities.

He said that farming, like other professions, is "becoming increasingly dependent upon highly trained professional manpower."

The first calf born at the 1957 show was named "Sandsdale Reflection Jane Leader," in honor of three-year-old Jane Ellen Leader, eaughter of the governor and Mrs. Leader. It is a purebred Holstein heifer owned by Ralph M. Sands and Son, Wyoming RD 3.

Shifting Population Is Problem for Churches

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa. (UP)— The growing and shifting population of the United States is making costly and almost insurmountable problems for the churches of the nation, the Methodist Church Board of Missions was told today

The rapid population growth, the shift from rural to urban areas, and the yearling movement of millions from state to state has forced the closing of many small rural churches and brought a need for new and enlarged churches in many old and new urban areas Glenn F Sanford rural specialist, told the meeting here

Sanford also noted a falling off of membership in many "downtown churches" in larger cities because people no longer live in the vicinity of these churches

He said the cost of building new churches, in both old and new communities is far in excess of funds available Methodist leaders estimate the churchs could erect 1 500 new churches within the next three years at a cost of $219-million he said

Dr Earl R Brown, general secretary of the division of national missions, said the greatest church building program in Methodist history will take place during the next few years and the building of new churches will not be confined to the United States Similar programs are underway in the church's "outpost missions" — Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, he said

The Rev Dr Thoburn T Brumbaugh, secretary for Korea, Japan and Okinawa said Korea may become the first Protestant Christian nation in Asia within 10 years

Brumbaugh said in his annual report that the Methodist Church has chosen Korea as one of four countries into which extra missionary money and manpower will be poured in the next four years

This award makes him eligible to apply for one of a group of major science scholarships sponsored by the Bausch and Lomb Optical Co. at the University of Rochester.

New Pastor Is Installed at Lutheran Church

The Rev John H. Schneidmiller was installed as pastor of Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church at special services Sunday evening.

The Rev. H Wahl Pfiefer, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church in Connellsville and president of the Greensburg Conference, conducted the installation service.

Serving as Liturgists were the Rev. Robert Kromer, pastor of the Ruffsdale parish and the Rev. William C. Bauer, retired minister, of Harrison City.

Mr. Schneidmiller is a graduate of Capital University at Columbus, O., and of Mount Airy Seminary at Philadelphia. He is 28 years of age and has been the pastor of two churches at Natrona since his graduation from Seminary in 1953.

Both he and his wife, Barbara, are natives of East Liverpool, O. They have two children. Nancy, age 3½ years and John, one year old

Following the service a social hour was held in the church dining room Refreshments were served by the Good Samaritan Sunday School Class with table decorations by Mrs Audrey Myers.

Some Warning Signs Of Carbon Monoxide

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

While most of us think of carbon monoxide as something to fear only when running an auto engine in a closed garage, it is just as dangerous when produced in the home.

In Illinois alone, between 40 and 50 persons lose their lives each year as a result of carbon monoxide poisoning. Many of these deaths occur right in the victims' own homes.

Carbon monoxide is a very poisonous gas. It is formed whenever wood, coal, oil or any other fuel is burned. If there is not sufficient oxygen available, or if the burning process is incomplete for any other reason, carbon monoxide is certain to develop.

Although you can't smell, taste or see the gas itself, there are a few warning signs that indicate a danger of carbon monoxide.

If flue gases are escaping into your home because of defective heating and venting equipment, you might notice an acrid odor. Your eyes and nostrils might smart.

Watch your heating equipment. If there are flakes of soot on the floor anywhere near the equipment or flue damper, it might be an indication that gases are not being expelled as they should.

There are many things you can do to help prevent development of carbon monoxide in your home.

For one thing, don't burn any kind of fuel — and I mean any kind — in an area that is airtight. Remember, carbon monoxide will develop if there is insufficient oxygen. Open a window slightly if you have to, but see that your heating appliance has enough air.

If venting is advised for your particular fuel burner, make sure it is vented properly to the outside. And never — I repeat, never — use an unvented fuel-burning space heater in a bedroom.

If the flame on your kitchen range is not burning evenly, scrub the burners with soap and water, using a stiff brush.

Make sure all equipment which burns fuel of any type is checked and adjusted each year.

Gas furnaces and appliances should be installed in accordance with standards established by the American Gas Association. You can obtain copies of these recommendations from the association offices at 420 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, New York.

Question and Answer

D. N. P.: Would you give me some information about multiple sclerosis. What are the symptoms of this disease?

Answer: Multiple sclerosis is a disease of the brain and spinal cord in which portions of the nerve tissues are replaced by scar tissue. This may occur in either the brain or spinal cord alone.

It occurs more commonly in females than in males.

The most common symptoms are blurring of the eyesight, weakness or tingling in the arms or legs and awkwardness in using one hand.

U. N. No Substitute For U. S. Policy

EX-PRESIDENT Truman, in his generally admirable statement supporting President Eisenhower's Middle East policy, made a point concerning the United Nations which seems to us to deserve emphasis.

"The United Nations," he said, "was established largely through the initiative and support of the United States and has its home here. It is growing in influence and power as a force for peace.

"But the United Nations was never intended to assume any of the burden of making foreign policy for the United States. To do so would weaken us and wreck the United Nations. For until other free nations grow in strength, the United Nations will continue to draw its strength from its strongest link — the United States."

This, in our opinion, puts the relationship between the United States and the United Nations in a proper perspective.

There has seemed to be some tendency in official Washington, under the Democrats as well as under the Republicans, to use the United Nations as a convenient crutch. During the recent Suez crisis, for example, it appeared that many Americans considered the United Nations as a good place to transfer some of our own national responsibilities.

We do not think President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles have adopted this concept. Rather, it seemed to us that they were trying to make sure during the Suez affair that American policies were understood and appreciated by world opinion. And there is no better place to work for such understanding than the United Nations.

* * *

BUT as it is presently constituted, the United Nations is really little more than a forum, a place where the policies and opinions of sovereign nations are registered and explained. When it comes to specific action, such as preventing aggression in the Middle East, the United Nations has great limitations as we are observing in the efforts to build an effective police force to interpose between Israel and Egypt.

The United Nations, of course, is growing in its influence. It may also someday develop a permanent and effective police force.

But even when it does, the separate nations must have their own policies to serve their own interests and they must have a certain freedom for the exercise of these policies. Such policies, to be sure, ought to be consonant with the spirit of the United Nations Charter, as we hope those of the United States always will be. But as Mr. Truman rightly says, the making of American policy cannot be transferred to the United Nations.

A Downtown Problem

MAYOR PARENTE has done well, we believe, to invite public attention once more to the desirability of converting to some more suitable use the property owned by the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad on Donner avenue between Second and Fourth streets.

In a "state of the city" report to the Monessen Rotary Club yesterday, which was read by Assistant City Solicitor Frank Ezerski, Jr., because the Mayor is hospitalized, Mr. Parente pointed out that "this site could have been put to far better use from a community-wide standpoint".

The Mayor went on to say that the antiquated and rather unsightly freight depot is acting as a barrier to the expansion of the downtown shopping district. And he proposes that, as a part of the new redevelopment program, these facilities should be moved to some other location and he suggests the former site of the Monessen Foundry & Machine Co. The latter property was acquired recently for development of a shopping center which thus far has not materialized although the land has been cleared.

Mr. Parente's suggestion is not a new one. It has been considered before and rejected because, as he intimates, of a "prohibitive" cost of acquiring the Donner avenue property from P. & L. E.

But we are inclined to agree with the Mayor that it may be now prohibitive for Monessen, and for the railroad company as well, to leave the freight depot where it is if means are at hand to relocate it and convert the site to more attractive and productive use. Mr. Parente's suggestion that the redevelopment program might provide these means seems to us to deserve immediate and serious consideration by all concerned. Neither Monessen nor the P. & L. E. Railroad, which of course cannot be indifferent to whatever might be good for Monessen, can be satisfied until this problem is solved.

Chou En-lai, the premier of Communist China, is circulating among the European comrades spreading the idea that they must all hang together or they will hang separately. Either way, this is the first constructive suggestion which has come from the Communist world since Khrushchev pulled Stalin from his pedestal.

Ike Decides Against India Visit

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has decided not to accept Prime Minister Nehru's invitation to make a return visit to India. Ike told his staff that he might offend other Asian countries if he visited India alone, and he had neither the time nor energy to tour Southeast Asia.

Mr. Pearson

Meanwhile; Nehru's honeymoon with the United States is already over — less than two weeks after Ike thought he charmed him into being a friend. Nehru is sizzling mad because Eisenhower did not tell him a single word during their White House conference about the new American Near East policy announced shortly after he left.

The American Embassy has tried to explain that the new policy wasn't drafted until after Nehru left, but Nehru won't accept the explanation. He has seen press reports published before he arrived in Washington that Dulles concocted the idea while he was recuperating in Key West several weeks ago.

Watching Hungary

Pennsylvania Congressman Carroll Kearns, Republican, had some breath-taking experiences with refugees on the Hungarian border recently.

He surprised everyone by appearing with his wife on the Austrian side of the border at 4 o'clock in the morning to inspect a refugee camp.

"When they heard I was an American Congressman, I was literally flooded with people," he recalls. "They all had stars in their eyes."

Kearns found that 60 per cent of the escapees wanted to come to the U. S. Yet there was no American official on the scene to greet them and keep hopes up, though other countries had responded by rushing consular personnel from Vienna to border camps. Reason was insufficient staff at the U. S. Embassy.

Switzerland called off all dances out of respect for the Hungarian freedom fighters, according to Kearns. Some countries, including France, rushed buses to the Hungarian border, then announced: "All refugees who want to go to France, climb aboard."

By contrast, the 60 per cent who hoped to enter the U. S. had to sit around for days without any encouragement from an American official. Some made their way to Vienna to knock on the door of the American Embassy in desperation, then were told to wait.

Kearns believes the refugees will be a ferment for good in the U. S. He tells of seeing an international Red Cross convoy of 35 trucks returning to Vienna following a mercy mission to Budapest.

"No one tried to pass them on the highway," he reports. "There was more reverence shown to those trucks than to a funeral procession in the United States."

The arrival of Hungarian refugees in the U. S, says the Congressman, could create a new reverence and appreciation of our own American freedoms.

Under the Dome

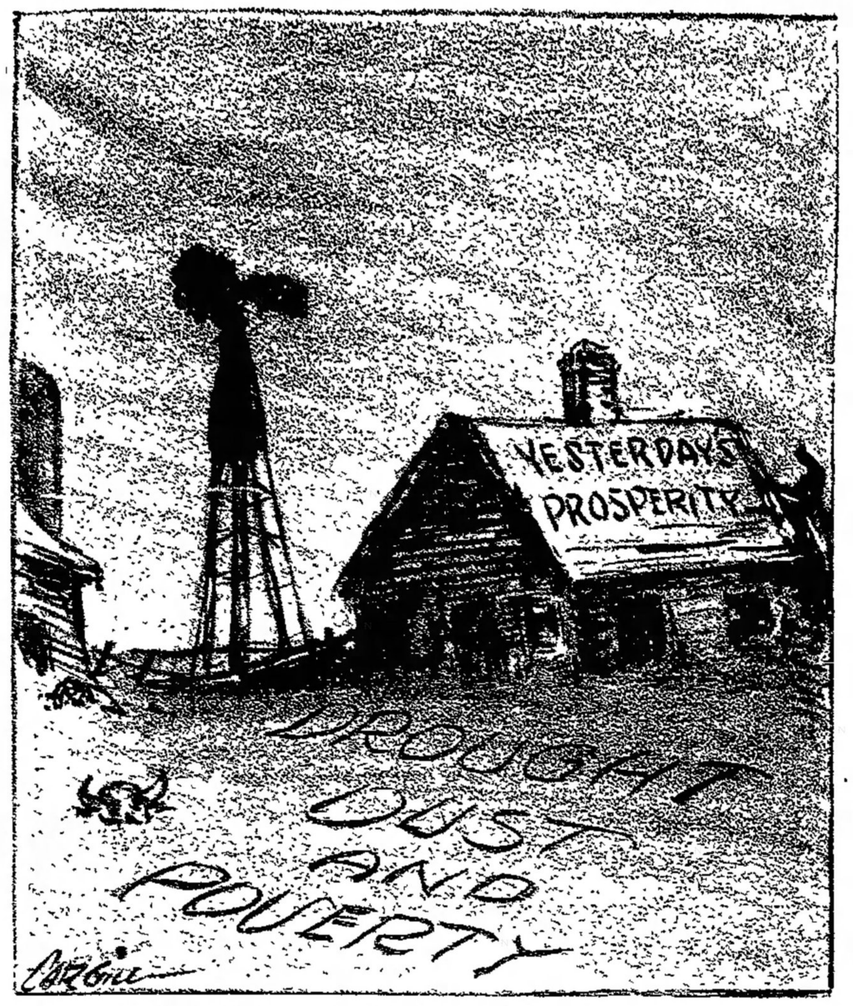
Secretary of Defense Wilson has told friends he will definitely resign from the Eisenhower cabinet after the defense budget is passed by Congress . . . Congressman John McCormack of Boston has been urging that the United States supply arms to Hungary and to any satellite revolting against Red rule . . . A confidential study of election returns blames Republican losses in the Middle West on Secretary of Agriculture Benson. Pressure from Republican politicians to oust Benson is growing . . . Congressman Sterling Cole of New York, top Republican on the atomic energy watchdog committee, has warned the White House that the Atomic Energy Commission's relations with Congress are at an alltime low. He's suggested that Ike fill the next vacancy with an ex-member of Congress.

Capital News Capsules

Trouble over Tito — Eisenhower will send able Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy, a Catholic, to Yugoslavia to arrange for Marshal Tito's visit to Washington. There's been a lot of Catholic and congressional opposition. The visit will take place but not until after Congress adjourns and congressional critics have gone home . . . (It's pure coincidence, but Murphy comes from Wisconsin where GOP Congressman O'Konski is protesting the loudest.)

Congressional Dictator — Congressmen are so fed up with the dictatorial methods of Congressmen Carl Vinson of Georgia, Democratic chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, that only one Congressman asked to serve on his committee — namely, Tobey Morris of Oklahoma, whose district embraces Fort Sill. To fill the two other vacancies, Congressmen actually had to be drafted. They complain that they must serve on Vinson's committee for three terms before they are even allowed to ask questions at committee hearings.

Little Gray Home in the West



From Washington—

The Three Urgent Questions

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

President Eisenhower is beginning his second-term relations with a Democratic Congress with a moderate, modest, muted State of the Union message — and no appeal to the political grandstands.

The message is authentic Eisenhower in mood and substance. It doesn't demand the moon, as Mr. Truman often used to do and never got either from a Democratic or a Republican Congress. It is not blustery. It is free from any sharp partisanship.

Mr. Drummond

The President has usefully focused the attention of the Congress and the country upon three urgent, over-riding questions which we must answer by action, not by words alone, in the immediate future.

How to shield the Middle East from Communist aggression and subversion before it is too late.

How government and business and labor can join to keep inflation from undermining the economy.

How quickly the federal government can begin to do its part to repair the grievous deterioration of our public schools.

Wise Approach

Mr. Eisenhower is not limiting his 1957 legislative program to these issues, but his annual message gives them ascendant priority. This is a wise approach. It is better to mark out what most critically needs to be done than to shower Congress instantly with a hailstorm of legislative proposals which would make large headlines but little headway.

It is certainly not an exciting nor a dramatic nor a very controversial message. My guess would be that the President planned it that way, and he deliberately refrained from making his appraisal of the State of the Union a vehicle for listing along assortment of legislative requests, as has usually been done in the past.

He will accomplish in his budget message much of what is usually accomplished in the State of the Union address — and for a special reason. Mr. Eisenhower wants to go just as far as he can to give Congress a dollar sign, a budgetary estimate, over every piece of new legislation he seeks.

By himself looking at the cost of whatever the government plans to do, he hopes that Congress will see the merit of doing the same thing; that is, will make sure that it is providing the revenue to defray the spending it wants to authorize.

Must Avoid More Debt

This attitude is directly related to the President's deep conviction that the nation can't defeat the insidious enemy of inflation unless, short of endangering our defenses, the federal government keeps from going into debt. The President put it this way:

"This danger (of inflation) requires a firm resolution that the federal government shall dedicate only a prudent share of the nation's resources, that it shall live within its means, carefully measuring against need alternative proposals for expenditures."

This, I think, could read: the government shouldn't spend lightly, should only spend where it is imperative; when need demands, as in the case of the schools, the government must find ways to stay in the black.

Mr. Eisenhower returns to his appeal for prompt congressional approval of his new Middle East policy and implicitly argues against the truncated substitute version offered by House Democrats. This substitute would defer any affirmation of U. S. economic aid and center exclusively on the military protection.

'On Dull Side'

Isn't this exactly what many leading Democrats have been criticizing — that the administration has relied too much on military measures? The President's position is that U. S. assurance against external aggression should be accompanied simultaneously with assurance that we aim to help with internal problems as one means of countering subversion.

This State of the Union message lights no fires. It is unquestionably on the dull side. It doesn't set out to galvanize Congress nor to make votes across the country — perhaps because that is one commodity which Mr. Eisenhower has in good supply.

The Lighter Side—

Young Senator from Idaho Some Talker

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON (UP)—The senator answered the phone himself, and the reporter asked the number of his office suite.

"Just a minute," said the senator, "I'll run out and see. I'm new around here."

Mr. Nichols

Sen. Frank Church (D-Ida.) not only is new around here, but this is his first fling at professional politics. Church is a likeable, dark-haired young man of 32. Know him for a couple of minutes and it's "cut-out-the-senator-stuff and call me Frank."

Church won his spurs by beating the Republican incumbent, Herman Welker.

Being a little green in the campaigning business, he ran into a little trouble.

"See this scar on my face?" he asked. "Well that was dug in by the teeth of what I fancy to call a 'Republican dog.' Anyhow the mutt took a dislike to a campaigner."

Got Lost Campaigning

Church, at the time, was doing some leaning over the fence campaigning in the hinterlands and trying to find his way back home to Boise, Ida.

"Of course I got lost, passing cards around and the like, scratching for votes," he said. "I thought I would stop and see if I was headed in the right direction."

Well, there was this farmer, one gallus hanging and leaning on a pitch fork. First Church asked him if he would be kind enough to put his "X" in the right column on election day.

"Reckon I will if I'm a mind to," the farmer said. "Who are you and where are you from."

Church gave the man straight answers.

"You sure are lost, young feller," the farmer said. "You're two miles inside of Utah."

His dog was less cooperative.

No Help From Father

The new senator got where he is with no help from his father, who is a Republican. Actually, you might say, he talked his way into the austere chambers of the United States Senate—the most famous debating club in the world.

He had a head start, really. When he was in high school he was on the debating team, "where we had to struggle with national issues — in other words politics."

A glib tongue won him a hatful of ribbons and a four-year college scholarship. As of the moment he is holding back the oratory.

"I prefer to follow the unwritten rules," he said. "That is that a freshman in the Senate should be looked at while quiet until he gets his toes in the sand. If you speak too often you get the reputation of being brash, like a bumblebee."

No bumblebee, this young man. But he admits that he is not above talking if and when the spirit moves. That may be sooner than his elders think.

Behind The News—

Chou Urges All Reds To Stick Together

By CHARLES M. MCCANN

Soviet Russia and Red China evidently have decided that if Communists do not hang together they are likely to hang separately.

That, in brief, is the new policy line which Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai is outlining as the result of his recent visit to Moscow.

There is no longer any doubt that Nikita S. Khrushchev, first secretary of the Russian Communist Party, appealed to Red China to help avert what threatened to be a break-up of the Soviet bloc in Europe.

Chou responded by interrupting his tour of East Asia and going to Moscow to cooperate in working out the new policy line.

Will Visit Hungary

From Moscow, Chou has gone on to "independent" Communist Poland. From there, he is going to Hungary where puppet Premier Janos Kadar is trying to prevent another outbreak of open rebellion by reverting to the ruthless methods of Josef Stalin.

In a long policy speech in Warsaw Chou said:

"We must march shoulder to shoulder to the same goal. We consider that the constant strengthening of (the) friendship of the socialist countries headed by the Soviet Union is our greatest duty..."

Thus Chou both appealed for unity in the Communist-ruled countries and reaffirmed Russia's position as the center of world Communism.

Recalls Franklin's Appeal

His appeal for unity was the same as that which Benjamin Franklin — speaking in a better cause—made at the signing of the Declaration of Independence in Philadelphia on July 4, 1776:

"We must all hang together, or assuredly we shall all hang separately."

The fact that Chou has specified that Russia is still the center of world Communism does not mean that Red China with its 600 million people intends to take a second-rank position.

Chou's support of Khrushchev, and of Russian leadership, stems from self interest. Red China still needs, and will need for some time, economic and technical help from the Communist countries of Europe.

At the White House—

Dispute Private Oath

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UP) — Backstairs at the White House:

President Eisenhower's present intention to take his real oath of office in private on Sunday, Jan. 20, is disturbing to a number of reporters, photographers and radio—TV men.

Mr. Eisenhower now intends to take the oath only in the presence of members of his immediate family and the family of Vice President Richard M. Nixon. The highly publicized oath ceremony on Capitol Hill on Monday, Jan. 21, will be a repeat performance. There also will be a speech by the President and a big parade.

Most newsmen covering the White House believe the Sunday ceremony is a truly historic moment to which the public that returned Mr. Eisenhower to office has a perfect right to read about in detail, and to see and hear over radio and television.

The President thinks otherwise. He doesn't like the idea of microphones, floodlights, cameras and reporters crowding into the East Room, intruding, as it were, on what he wants to be a simple, brief and entirely family affair.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty at one time had a plan for coverage of the Sunday ceremony. The number of reporters was to be limited, television and radio coverage was to be pooled and only a few still cameras were to be admitted.

But the presidential foot came down suddenly. Unless Mr. Eisenhower raises it, the only details of the historically rare Sunday ceremony will be those funneled to the reporters by Hagerty. At last count, there will be no pictures.

There's possibly something more than Mr Eisenhower's desire for privacy behind the decision. Some of his associates have feared that extensive public treatment of the private oath might take some of the shine off Monday's ceremony.

Those more experienced in public relations can't quite see it that way. Regardless of the Sunday coverage, the big show for the public will be Mr. Eisenhower's Monday inaugural address and the colorful parade.

For those who think presidential travel is the epitome of luxurious movement, Mr. Eisenhower's current five-state drought inspection trip should be disillusioning.

Here is an excerpt from a memo issued to personnel accompanying the President:

"The area you will be covering may include rain, snow, sleet, hail and dust storms. Sweaters, wind breakers, rubbers and rough clothing are in order."

One of the television camera towers erected in front of the White House for the inauguration was put up backwards. The cameras would have been facing Lafayette Park, rather than the President and the inaugural parade. Hasty revisions were necessary.

Efforts to get answers or action at the White House these days on anything but matters of utmost importance invariably encounter the same reply: "Wait until after the inauguration."

Every member of the ... seems to be swamped with ... on some phase of the highly complicated matter of getting Mr. Eisenhower started on his second term.

The children exchanged gifts and an apron donated by Mrs. Helen Pacak was won by Mrs. Ann Vasil. Mrs. Felak in the role of "Santa Claus" paid a visit and distributed treats to the children.

Luncheon was served by Della Yasko, Pauline Sypolt, Helen Dacko, Betty Gladys, Mary Hakulin, Martha Rozzi, Ann Dacko, Helen Pollock. Music was provided throughout the afternoon by Robert Wanzilak and Robert Sypolt.

Mrs. Helen Dacko and Mrs. Pauling Sypolt were co-chairmen of the party and in charge of arranging the entertainment were Mrs. Helen Costella, Mrs. Ann Dacko and Mrs. Ann Vasil.

WHICH GIRL PASSED THE N. P.* TEST?
*NINETY PERCENT
The poised young woman at the right of course. You can tell at a glance . . . and that's why the Ninety-Percent Test is so important. Adults judge even children (and children judge each other) by what they see. It's true that clothes may create slightly less than 90% of the impression Juniors make, but the test is just as important.
Another point to remember: Because children's clothes become so grimy so quickly, it's especially important to have them drycleaned regularly and often. (This kind of care carries a built-in bonus. In addition to looking fresher, drycleaned clothes last longer.)

Sharon Rates as WPIAL Contender

"In considering WPIAL basketball contenders this season, don't overlook Sharon," advises Monessen High coach Frank Janosik. "I understand Sharon is the team to beat in Section 3 and their scores to date seem to prove it." . . . Incidentally Sharon plays host to Farrell a week from Friday. That game should provide a better line on the Sharon lads . . . Bob Garber, the Pirate pitching hopeful, has moved from his native Connellsville to Los Angeles where he's gone to work in the off-season for a water purification firm . . . There's considerable agitation in town to organize a Dapper Dan Club for the purpose of promoting sports events in the interest of charity. Sounds like a good idea.

* * *

Even though the fabulous Red Worrell is scheduled to earn a diploma this June, Centerville High is still having trouble arranging a football schedule. Still to be filled are five open dates! . . . By the way, Rostraver is looking for a football foe on Nov. 1 or 2 to fill the vacancy left when Monessen dropped off the schedule . . . McKeesport High basketball coach Neenie Campbell claims that Uniontown is the best team his boys have played this season. The towering Tigers had to scrap every minute to earn a one-basket decision.

* * *

Is Bellmar Ready to Quit Section 5

Brownsville High isn't the only school anxious to quit Section 5 in favor of another loop. There's talk now that Bellmar would like to return to its old spot in Section 10 . . . By the way, the Canes should have a swell gym in a couple of seasons. Plans are well advanced for the basketball layout . . . Joe Marconi, standout fullback of the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League, is spending the off-season at his home in Fredericktown. He's currently employed with the field assessment crew of Washington County . . . The Pittsburgh Pirates will open the 1957 season on April 16 at Forbes Field against the New York Giants.

* * *

Julius McCoy, the former Farrell flash who once wrecked the Monessen basketballers in the WPIAL championship game, hasn't ost his scoring touch. Julius tallied 55 points for the Fort Knox Army quint against the Camp LeJuene Marines the other day . . . Just for the record, McCoy is the property of the St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association . . . John (Crawford) Beazell, former Monongahela High and Waynesburg College football star, is scheduled to shove off soon for Okinawa for a tour of duty with the Marines. Right now Lt. Beazell is stationed at Quantico.

MHS Starters Share Scoring Lead

Every member of the Monessen High starting five has led the team in scoring in at least one game this season. How's that for offensive balance? . . . In Brownsville, they've organized a basketball program for seventh and eighth grade boys to improve the school's floor future. In charge is Frank Dankovich, junior high boss . . . Despite their fine record, the Charleroi High basketballers aren't receiving "rave" notices in the hometown press. Following their recent win over Brownsville, the story read: "The big Cougars, who looked like men compared to the pint-sized Brownies, behaved more like prima donnas than they did a solid basketball team."

Jockey Red Pollard To Stage Comeback

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) — They always called John (Red) Pollard the "Indestructible" and the word out of Florida today seems to prove it all over again.

The name may not be very familiar to you. But 20 years ago it was a racing byword as he and the mighty Seabiscuit drove to fame and fortune together.

Now at 46, Red Pollard is getting ready for another of his numerous comebacks.

It's like hearing that Walter Hagen, Dizzy Dean or Jimmy Braddock is going to give it another try. Yet Red is only one year older than the still active Johnny Longden. And he has proved many a time that you can not keep a good man down.

Sat On Sidelines

Pollard was at the top, as Seabiscuit's regular rider, when he cracked up late in 1937. Still nursing a broken leg, he sat disconsolately on the sidelines as the 'Biscuit, with Georgie (the Iceman) Woolf up, lost by a nose to Stagehand in the 1938 Santa Anita Handicap.

Barely recovered, Pollard went to Suffolk Downs for the Massachusetts Handicap. There, as a favor to a friend, he galloped a green two-year-old colt and it bolted. Red's leg was re-broken, again he sat by as Woolf rode Seabiscuit to victory in the Pimlico Special.

Shortly thereafter, the 'Biscuit came down with a bad leg too and both Pollard and the horse recuperated together on owner C. S. Howard's California farm.

Came Back Together

A year later they came back—and the big horse and the little redhaired jockey fashioned a story book ending by winning the Santa Anita Handicap on the third try.

But, while the 'Biscuit retired, it was only the beginning of another chapter for Pollard.

Until, in 1945, he was seriously injured again in another spill. For a long period his life hung in the balance.

After that spill, Red tried training for a while but, while his charges were supposed to be runners, Pollard commented quizzically that "they never proved it to me." So he chucked the whole thing.

You can't blame his friends for hoping that, to keep the larder full, somebody passes him another 'Biscuit.

Brownies Easily Top Monongahela

Brownsville High's surprising Brownies easily turned back Monongahela, 67-41, in Section 5 play last night.

Bob Chuey, Brownsville's brilliant scorer, tossed in 27 points. But that total was more than matched by teammate Grover Ferguson who accounted for 28 points.

High man for Monongahela was Dee Galiffa with 16.

Lineups follow:

Brownsville 67

Chuey, 13-1-27; Ferguson, 13-2-28; Sluger, 0-0-0; Hartmann, 1-0-2; Hovan, 4-0-8; Hanula, 1-0-2. Totals, 32-3-67.

Saddler Dethroned As Fight Champ

MILWAUKEE (UP) — Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler was dethroned today in a bloodless coup headed by Fred Saddy, chairman of the National Boxing Associations Rating Committee.

The NBA officials had warned the wiry Bostonian Jan. 9, to sign for a title bout by midnight Jan. 15 or be dropped from the NBA's rating as featherweight champion of the world.

"We heard no word from Saddler, his manager or a doctor who could confirm Saddler was physically unfit to fight," Saddy said. "So, we are dropping him from our ratings as champion."

Rostraver Five Takes Lead

Leps Top Ramsay in Section 10

Rostraver High's sharp-shooting basketballers advanced to the top of the Section 10 standings last night by surprising Ramsay, 66-52, at the Bobcats floor.

The victory gave Coach George Everett's Leps a 3-1 record in league play. Ramsay sustained its first Section loss and now owns a 2-1 slate.

Set-shooting Jim Bush again paced the Rostraver point-making. He tossed in 14 points, scoring on six long fielders.

Haten Has 13

Reginald Haten chipped in with 13 points while Willie Allen contributed a dozen to the Rostraver total.

For the losers, Hammond and Santrea each had 14.

Rostraver jumped off to a 16-13 lead in the first period and stayed in front all the way.

In the Junior Varsity game, Ramsay won easily, 56-20.

FOOTBALL OR BASKETBALL? — From the position of the players in the picture above it's hard to tell whether Monessen and Washington are engaged in basketball or football. Actually this is a first period scene from Washington's 63-54 floor win over the Greyhounds at the MHS gym last night. However it seems as though Monessen's Carl Crawley (in white) and Washington's Chuck Smith are lined up in football position for a center snap. Joe Kurey (42), of Monessen, appears ready to take the ball from center, while Beanie Gordon (45), of Washington and Maurice Mathieu (10), of Monessen, are ready to dive through for yardage.

Cro-Ams, Viaduct Favored in City League Tonight

Neither the Cro-Ams nor Viaduct are expected to have much trouble tonight in City League basketball games at the Junior High gym as they tune up for tomorrow's big showdown.

The undefeated Cro-Ams will meet the lowly Yellow Jackets at 7 p m while second place Viaduct will tackle the last place Cips at 9.

In between, East End will meet Big Five at 8.

The Cro-Ams have handled eleven straight foes, practically all of them with ease. So they aren't expected to so much as work up a sweat against the Jackets who have been able to win only one of ten games this season.

Easy Time

Viaduct, beaten only in the season-opener by the Cro-Ams, likewise should have an easy time against the cellar-dwelling Cips.

If both teams win as expected, that will set the stage for tomorrow's big battle between the two contenders at 8 p. m.

Viaduct, defending league champion, has waited for the opening day of the season to get back at the Cro-Ams.

City League standings follow:

Minoso Returns His Contract Unsigned

By UNITED PRESS

Chuck Comiskey, vice-president in charge of negotiating contracts for the Chicago White Sox, today worked on a new pact to be mailed later this week to outfielder Saturnino Orestes Arrieta Armas Minoso.

An earlier contract, addressed to Orestes Minoso, was returned unsigned to the White Sox Tuesday by the Cuban outfielder. Attached to the contract was a note dripping with sarcasm.

"I am sending this contract you sent to me because I guess you was wrong about it," Minoso wrote from his home at Marianao, Cuba. "It looks like a contract which belong to me for year of '53 or '54 not for Minoso after fine 1956 year I have."

Next Contract

"The next contract will be addressed to Saturnino Orestes Arrieta Armas Minoso," the young White Sox official explained with a straight face.

Minoso, who reportedly received $32,000 last year, is a perennial holdout. He was the White Sox' leading hitter in 1956, batting .316, driving in runs and collecting 21 home runs.

While Comiskey revealed one malcontent in the White Sox family, he happily announced the signing of outfielder Jim Rivera, rookie shortstop on Prohovich and rookie pitcher Bill Fischer.

Jim Finigan, obtained from the Kansas City Athletics last month in an eight-player deal, signed his 1957 contract with the Detroit Tigers.

Salary Problems

First baseman Joe Adcock cleared up his salary problems through 1958 by inking a two-year pact with the Milwaukee Braves. The husky slugger enjoyed his best season in the majors last year when he batted .291, hit 38 homers and knocked in 103 runs.

Other signings announced included:

Chicago Cubs' Pitchers Bob Rush and John Briggs.

New York Giants' Infielder Henry Thompson, and pitchers Marv Grissom, Roy Wright, and Bob Quinn.

Brooklyn Dodgers: Third baseman Dick Gray, shortstop Bob Lillis, and outfielder Jim Koranda.

Pittsburgh Pirates: Pitchers Vernon Law and Nelson King.

Detroit Tigers: Pitchers Al Aber and Jim Bunning.

Johnson Twins Pace Carroll to Win over Marion

The Johnson twins paced Carroll Twp. to a 43-33 win over Marion in Section 3 Junior WPIAL basketball action at the losers gym yesterday.

Bill Johnson tossed in 26 points while brother Bob hit for 14. Between them, the Johnson boys tallied 40 of Carroll's 43 points.

For Marion, Coates was high with 10 points.

Lineups follow:

Next NBA Team Seen in Detroit

BOSTON (UP)— Detroit has been named as the probable site of the next National Basketball Association franchise.

Owner Fred Zollner of the Fort Wayne Pistons said Tuesday he had been exploring the possibility of shifting his franchise to Detroit next season because of falling attendances in Fort Wayne.

Detroit, which had an NBA franchise that folded, was named the next official site for expansion of the professional basketball league by NBA President Maurice Podoloff.

Washington JVs Beat Monessen

Washington High's visiting Jayvees tripped the Monessen Reserves, 35-32, last night at the MHS gym.

The visitors led most of the way, although the Monessen boys did manage to catch up for awhile in the third stanza.

Charles Bill and Carl Payne each had 10 points for Monessen Grudi and Harton had eight markers apiece for the winners.

Lineups follow:

Monessen JVs 32

Bill 5-0-10; Murin, 1-0-2, Bronson, 1-0-2 Makenin, 1-0-2 Karolowsky, 2-1-5; Payne, 4-2-10 Totals, 14-4-32.

Muckle Returns To Marion Cagers

Muckle, who was hospitalized for more than a week, wasted no time in returning to his team.

Discharged Monday from Charleroi-Monessen hospital after winning a bout against a stomach ailment, Muckle returned immediately to his coaching duties.

During Muckle's absence, Tom Banjor piloted the team.

Red-Hot Prexies Nip MHS Rally to Win in Exhibition

Washington High's hot-shooting basketballers nipped a frantic Monessen rally in the closing moments to score an impressive 63-54 exhibition win before 1108 fans at the MHS gym last night.

In so doing, the Prexies became the first team to defeat Monessen on its home floor this season.

The visitors also earned another distinction. Their 63 point total was the highest ever run against the defense-minded Greyhounds in the five year history of their spacious gym.

Much of the credit for the Washington success must go to the incomparable James (Beanie) Gordon, 5-10 senior shotmaker who accounted for 21 points.

Lots of Help

However Gordon received lots of help from his teammates, particularly 6-3 Chuck Smith, a gangling junior who controlled both banking boards.

Hitting on almost half of their field goal attempts, the winners led from start to finish. Most of the game the Prexies were far ahead.

To Monessen's credit, it must be said that the Hounds never quit. When the odds appeared heaviest against them, they staged a rally which had the Prexie followers excited.

With a minute and a half gone in the final period, Monessen's ace rebounder Carl Crawley fouled out of the game. At the time, the Hounds trailed, 55-39, and the cause appeared hopeless.

Get Rolling

It was then that the Monessen boys got rolling for a last-ditch effort which came close to turning the tide. At the 2:55 mark, the Hounds had narrowed the gap to 57-53.

However the poised visitors refused to crack and they took advantage of Monessen's close checking to score a couple of "sleepers" in the closing seconds and thus ice the game.

Washington leaped off to an 18-8 lead in the first period and was in front, 38-29 at intermission.

In the third period, the Hounds simply couldn't slice the Washington advantage and once trailed by 16 points before the fourth quarter spurt.

High man for the Hounds was Frank Crisi who tallied 17 points. Maurice Mathieu chipped in with 11.

The Prexies, who played a superlative game all around, hit on 23 of 48 field goal attempts for almost 48 per cent accuracy. That's a lusty figure in any league.

Most of the Prexie shots were from outside, too.

Monessen wound up with 20 fielders in 68 tries for a comparatively weak 29 per cent.

Gordon, who made seven of 17 field goal attempts, lived up to his advanced billing. He was all over the floor and directed the Washington attack from start to finish.

The Hounds threw a variety of defenses at Gordon but he still wound up making 21 points, just four shy of his average output for the season.

The loss was the fifth in 13 starts for Monessen this season. Washington now has a season-long record of eight wins and just one loss.

The Hounds will resume Section 5 competition on Friday when they appear at Donora.

BOWLING

By JOE JANNOTTA

In reply to several requests by novices, let us define more duckpin terms today.

Our bowling glossary continues:

Bed Posts — The 7 and 10 pin left standing after your first ball.

Mark — Making a strike or spare.

Sleeper — A hidden pin or pin directly back of another.

Split — Two or more pins which remain standing with intermediate pins knocked down in front or between them.

Fill — Refers to the number of pins knocked down by the ball following a spare, or by the next two balls following a strike, to be added to the frame in which the spare or strike was made.

Flat Game — A game in which no strike or spare was made.

Hop on the Cripple — Taking advantage of a single or two pin spare break after a very poor first ball hit.

Kick Back — The high division boards between alleys at the pit end.

So much for today's lesson in terms.

North Carolina Roars Along Unbeaten with 15 Victories

By UNITED PRESS

They have the record (15-0), they have revenge over their arch-rival, and now North Carolina's torrid Tar Heels need only the votes to become the nation's No. 1 college basketball team.

North Carolina, the only unbeaten major college team in the nation now that Kansas has been whipped, bid to supplant Kansas at the top of the ratings heap Tuesday night with a rough-and-tumble, 83-57 victory over once mighty North Carolina State on State's own court in Raleigh, N.C.

It was only the fourth win in 13 games for Tar Heel Coach Frank McGuire in a red-hot rivalry with State Coach Everett Case, but it could have been North Carolina's biggest move toward an unbeaten season.

Nothing Works For State

N.C. State, perennial champion of the Atlantic Coast Conference but hampered by the loss of scoring ace John Richter with an ankle injury, tried everything to upset the Tar Heels and nothing worked. The Wolfpack played a possession game early, but the Tar Heels took a 28-23 halftime lead. After a late rally that cut the margin to three points and then faltered, State tried an all-court press — but that backfired as the Tar Heels built a 10-point lead into their final 26 point margin in the last three minutes.

Lennie Rosenbluth led North Carolina with 29 points and Pete Brennan added 22, while Ken Clark topped N.C. State with 16. North Carolina had only one more basket than N.C. State, but the Tar Heels rolled it up at the free throw line with 43 conversions in 50 attempts to State's 19-for-34.

In one eight-minute stretch in the second half, the Tar Heels didn't get a basket — but had 15 free throws, 12 of them by Brennan.

Watch For Rankings

North Carolina, now ranked No 2 nationally, and Kansas, which was upset, 39-37, by Iowa State Monday, now are idle for two weeks for exams. But they'll be watching for the new cage rankings early next week.

Southern Methodist, the nation's No. 4 team, barely skinned to a 59-57 victory over Rice to remain atop the Southwest Conference.

St. Louis, ranked 17th nationally, romped to a 91-65 victory over Drake in the Missouri Valley Conference, breaking the game open after being held to a 36-33 halftime lead. Joe Todd racked up 28 points for St. Louis and Dan Callahan had 22 for Drake, but Drake scoring ace Red Murrell was held to 11 and fouled out with 15 minutes left.

Duquesne University surged in the final half Tuesday night to chalk up its fifth victory in its last six starts with a 76-70 verdict over DePaul at the Pitt Memorial Fieldhouse.

Vernon Jrs. Nip Rostraver, 35-33, In Section 2

Vernon Junior High was back in the Section 2 race today after nipping highly touted Rostraver, 35-33, at the Puppy gym yesterday.

Willie Ross was high for the Leps with 13.

As a result of the game, both teams now have 2-1 league records.

Elliott Named Football Coach At California

BERKELEY, Calif. (UP)—Young Pete Elliott had two things today to brighten the future of any ambitious football coach: A three-year contract as head man at the University of California and 23 returning lettermen to mould into a winning team.

Elliott, head Nebraska coach for one season, was named Cal's head coach Tuesday night, replacing Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf.

Athletic Director Greg Englehard said Elliott was the unanimous choice of the executive committee."

Englehard said the 30-year-old protege of Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson would have a free rein in selecting his assistants.

Hastings declined to mention salary terms other than to say the "financial figure agreed upon was mutually satisfactory to both parties."

It has been learned unofficially that Elliott signed for at least $18,000 a year — $3,500 more than he got at Nebraska.

Simultaneously with Cal's announcement, Nebraska reported Bill Jennings, backfield coach, was being promoted to the head coaching spot.

Elliott inherits a team with plenty of potential. Of the 23 returning lettermen there are three good quarterbacks and a solid line.

Denies She'll Get Job

WASHINGTON (UP)—Mrs. Carroll D. Kearns, wife of a Pennsylvania Republican House member and outgoing president of the National Federation of Republican Women, says she knows nothing of a report she may get a liaison job between the White House and GOP women's groups.

"I really don't know anything about it," Mrs. Kearns told a reporter Tuesday. "I'm sure that would be an important job and a valuable job to the women of the country."

Mrs. Kearns has been active here in Republican women's work for 10 years.

A reception in her honor will be held this afternoon at the Mayflower Hotel with Vice President and Mrs. Nixon expected to attend.

Farm Aid Spending Is Upped

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today proposed an all-time high of $5.3 billion in federal farm aid spending for the 1958 fiscal year.

He also told Congress in his budget message that the administration will recommend "certain changes . . . in the corn program." He gave no details. But it was learned the Agriculture Department is drafting a bill to provide for a basic corn acreage of 51 million, with 15 per cent of it to be put into the soil bank.

Corn price supports under the proposed bill would be left to the discretion of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson. Authoritative sources said Benson probably would fix 1957 supports at $1.35 a bushel—the same level already announced under the existing corn program which calls for acreage allotments of 37.3 million this year.

The farm budget included $3. billion in price and income aid programs for farmers. It topped estimated spending on agriculture in the current fiscal year by $17 million.

The budget reflected federal concern over the devastating south-western drought. It proposed $303 million for the Farmers Home Administration, which makes emergency loans to farmers and ranchers—a $34 million increase over the current year.

The President asked Congress for three other changes in farm law:

—Extension for an additional year of the surplus disposal act under which farm surpluses can be bartered overseas or sold for foreign currency. The act expires June 30. The President also asked Congress to lift the ceiling on foreign currency sales by $1 billion to a total of $4 billion.

—Amendment of the surplus act to permit barter deals with Iron Curtain countries.

—Amendment of the wheat control law to exempt from federal marketing quotas farmers who use on their own farms all the wheat they produce. Under present law, farmers who overplant wheat acreage allotments are subject to cash penalties.

Aluminum Entering The Building Market

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Aluminum Company of America, which pioneered the age of metal-clad skyscrapers, moved into the home-building market today with plans for a virtually all-aluminum six-room house priced at under $25,000.

Alcoa said it hoped to achieve the "greatest change in residential building materials in centuries."

Announcing establishment of a Residential Building Products Sales Division, Alcoa said it will furnish plans and specifications and sponsor construction of 50 model aluminum homes throughout the United States this year.

The company said its "Alcoa Care-Free Houses" will feature aluminum exterior and interior walls, roof, windows, hardware, and other practical applications, including a "warm, pleasing use of color" in its modern styling. Alcoa said its aim is better homes with much-lower maintenance.

Alcoa said the model homes, utilizing present-day aluminum building products, will be constructed by selected independent builders at "strategic locations" throughout the country.

The company said it is convinced a "reasonable use of aluminum building products now available could put 1,200 to 2,000 pounds into a new home." Alcoa, which constructed the first major metal-clad skyscraper when it built its aluminum sheathed headquarters here in 1950, has been testing the practical livability of an all-aluminum house it constructed at New Kensington, Pa., several years ago. The test model contains 7,000 pounds of the metal.

Alcoa stressed its residential building products sales division will promote the sale of existing products and those under development but actual construction of aluminum homes will be left up to individual contractors.

Its "Care-Free House" is regarded only as a beginning—with plans for "the ultimate house of the future" expected to evolve from a home design conference next April and the efforts of its newly organized Residental Building Products Advisory Committee, Alcoa said. This committee will help solve specific home design problems as well as develop new building methods and products.

Scout Leaders in Discussion Of Activities for the Year

The newly organized committee of Scout leaders, committee women and aides met recently at the American Legion Home, Fayette City, to discuss activities for the coming year.

Officers were elected at a former meeting and were in charge. Mrs. George Moody, chairman, will serve with Mrs. George Arrow, vice-chairman; Mrs. Ralph Gill, secretary and Mrs. Wesley Hines, treasurer.

The committee chairmen were named by Mrs. Moody. Mrs. Gill will serve as the registrar; Mrs. E. Cramer, Juliette Lowe; Mrs. James Eley, membership; Mary Ann Puskas, camp and Mrs. Hines, finance.

The second Tuesday of each month was agreed upon as the regular meeting night. This committee was formerly a part of the Triad, a leadership group from three districts, but due to the rapid growth of scouting in Fayette City the local group formed an independent committee to be know as the Community Neighborhood Committee.

The first fund raising activity will be held Thursday between the hours of 11:30 a. m. and 1 p. m. when the women will hold a candy sale at the Legion Home.

The women are also looked forward to Mother-Daughter banquet. It will be held sometime in February in one of the local churches. Mrs. Thurman Bailey and Mrs. Arrow were named co-chairmen of the event and Mrs. Gill, program chairman.
